

Press Release
Date: 11 Apr 2007
For immediate release

World's First Organic Lubricants at Organic Festival, September, 2007

The world's first range of organic lubricants called 'Yes' will be putting in an appearance at the Soil Association Organic Food Festival, 1-2 September 2007. Yes lubricants are intimate products, which have taken three years of research and development to produce. They have powerful moisture retentive properties, are bio-adhesive to mucous membranes (inner skin environment), and are made from quality, organic, natural ingredients including a skin food with a 6,000 year pedigree.

For more information on Yes go to www.yesyesyes.org

More information on the Soil Association Fortnight and Festival...

Soil Association Organic Fortnight, nationwide, 1-16 September 2007.
A nationwide celebration of fresh, tasty, local, organic food kicking off with the Organic Food Festival in Bristol.

Organic Fortnight involves thousands of people and events across the UK, taking place at farms, farm shops, high streets, pubs, restaurants and schools. This year, the Soil Association will be asking everyone up and down the country to 'Wake Up to an Organic Breakfast'. Check out events in your local area – www.soilassociation.org/organicfortnight

Soil Association Organic Food Festival, Bristol, 1-2 September 2007 Kicking off the nationwide Soil Association Organic Fortnight, the biggest celebration of organic food in Europe - the Soil Association Organic Food Festival - is one not to be missed!

Bristol's popular harbourside will be converted into a food extravaganza for the sixth year running with over 300 exhibitors and thousands of products from the UK's leading organic producers.

Visitors can sample organic food and drink, fashion and health and beauty products, and enjoy a range of entertainment and art fringe events including celebrity demonstration kitchens and an exciting schedule of talks, tastings and testings.

There will be an organic fashion show for the first time and a relaxation zone; cookery workshops and an activity zone for kids - an exciting opportunity to engage our future generation with organic products, and 'green planet' and 'green home' pavilions for those who want to find out more about sustainable living.

END